List of Figures

List of Tables

[In mathematical theses, it could be better to move the list of tables to the beginning of the thesis.]

List of Abbreviations

[In mathematical theses, it could be better to move the list of abbreviations to the beginning of the thesis.]

Attachments

[Attachments to the master thesis, if any. Each attachment must be referred to at least once from the text of the thesis. Attachments are numbered.]

[The printed version should preferably contain attachments, which can be read (additional tables and charts, supplementary text, examples of program output, etc.). The electronic version is more suited for attachments which will likely be used in an electronic form rather than read (program source code, data files, interactive charts, etc.). Electronic attachments should be uploaded to SIS and optionally also included in the thesis on a CD/DVD.]
